ST GEORGE'S CHURCH, DOUGLAS ISLE OF MAN

St George's church was founded in 1761, when much of the Island's prosperity came from smuggling. Construction was suspended, for lack of funds, in 1765 when the Island was sold to the British crown, but resumed ten years later, and the building was consecrated in 1781.

The first organ was purchased from a music society in Dublin in 1780 and was installed in the west gallery. When the chancel was rebuilt in 1864 an organ was installed behind the choir; it was enlarged in successive rebuilds. The new instrument remains in the chancel, and is designed for teaching and recitals as well as for choral and congregational accompaniment.
